

Alternate Level of Care Reactivation Care Centre

Inpatient Medicine Alternate Level of Care Patients

We use a collaborative and innovative approach designed to help patients who no longer need acute care services but require alternate care facilities such as convalescent care and retirement home settings. Our Alternate Level of Care (ALC) unit, provides patients with physiotherapy and occupational therapy with the goal of maintaining current level of function. Therapy focuses on helping staff with transitioning patients to their next most appropriate care environment.

Complex Care Patients

Complex medical

We provide specialized goal-oriented and personalized rehabilitation based on the patient needs, improving the lives of adults recovering from injury or illness. Active participation is critical. The goal will be stabilization of complex medical needs (i.e. wounds, drains, feeding tubes, etc.) in combination with appropriate rehabilitation. We offer patients therapy based on their functional goals. The rest of the time patients will be encouraged to be dressed daily, wear proper footwear and be as independent as possible in their mobility and self-care.

Low Tolerance Long Duration

We provide patients with therapy that focuses on improving mobility and activities of daily living to help patients return home and reintegrate into their lives. Group classes may also be available. The rest of the time patients will be encouraged to be dressed daily, wear proper footwear and be as independent as possible in their mobility and self care.

What is the Reactivation Care Centre?

The Mackenzie Health Reactivation Care Centre (RCC) is an extension of Mackenzie Health's two main sites. It is located at 2111 Finch Avenue, only 13 kilometers from Cortellucci Vaughan Hospital and 21 kilometers from Mackenzie Richmond Hill Hospital.

Patients who no longer need acute care resources will be transferred to the RCC free of charge.

Transferring patients to the RCC ensures seamless care from acute care to post-acute care. The same medical records are used at the RCC which supports with patient's attending appropriate follow-up appointments at the main sites with specialists from the hospital (i.e. fracture clinic).
